HomeFeelio

HomeFeelio breaks up old fashioned structures in the holiday home management industry and combines a conventional service offering with an innovative and technological approach to become the next generation holiday home manager!

More transparent. Faster. Digital.

We are looking for people who have the urge to break through a conservative and highly fragmented industry and build a unified and internationally recognized brand in the holiday home management industry.

We are an early stage startup with funding, and you can shape our way with us together out of Berlin!

Head of IT (m/f/x) as of May 2020 in Berlin

Your Tasks:

- You program and develop our platform, the dynamic price algorithm as well as the front- and backend of our website
- You set up your own developer team and take over its leadership and development
- You are responsible for the entire technological infrastructure, the selection of programming language(s) and application of tools
- You are responsible for the continuous improvement of our product by developing innovative product features
- You are the interface between management and software development and execute derived strategic goals

Your Profile:

- You are an experienced (backend-) developer with at least 1-2 years of professional experience (internships also count)
- You have very good communication skills (oral and written), act as a role model and your personal goal is to lead a team of developers
- You have a problem solving and structured way of working, are open for feedback and are always looking for the best solution
- You have at least a bachelor's degree in computer science, software engineering or something similar
- You share our enthusiasm for startups, holiday homes and tourism

What's In For You:

- An attractive stake in HomeFeelio
- A great amount of responsibility and creative possibilities to develop your skillsets
- You work in a small, cool and highly motivated team, which supports you continuously in your further development
- You benefit from a relaxed working atmosphere - Friday evening drinks guaranteed.
- If you like to build up a young start-up with a sustainable vision from the very beginning, HomeFeelio is the right place for you!
